Challenge for McGovern and Hanoi

THE disclosure that Democratic candidate George McGovern's maing mate, Senator Eagleton, is las on a number of occasions in he past required psychiatric reatment and hospitalization has rofoundly shaken the electoral cene in the U.S.

While both candidates have ought to stem the damage caus-d by this revelation with exressions of confidence, the re-ercussions continue, How the ballenge will ultimately be re-olved by the Democratic Party eadership and Senator McGovern remains to be seen.

Understandably the American ublic has primarily been exerhe issue upon the Democratic late and ultimately upon the lection.

However, it is also reasonable o assume that the shock sufferd by the Democrats may regster itself no less directly upon he issue that has seized the J.S. so profoundly — the war a Vietnam.

For most experts believe that he course adopted by the North /ietnamese for 1972 reflects heir calculation of what would e most expedient in an election 'ear.

The invasion of the South, began in March, and which has now largely run its ourse, was part of this calcula-ion. Hanoi believed that such · massive offensive would put fr. Nixon, confronting an elecion and an unpopular war, at a rave disadvantage, tying his ands.

But they miscalculated not nly what Mr. Nixon would o with his navy and air force, ut also what he could do. They id not know the havor that ould be brought upon them by aser and television bombs, and id not expect that the Russian Sam missile defences would fall then at a critical hour. They probably also did not count on he degree of resistance that ome of the better South Vietamese units have displayed.

As a result Hanoi has been

The General Council of the T.U.C. announced yesterday afternoon it had decided to call off the general shutdown as a result of the men being released.

The planned docks shutdown was a grave blow to Britain's ailing economy. It was decided on by longshoremen's delegates as the country struggled painfully back to normal working after snowballing strikes called earlier this week to protest the jailing of the five dockers

The government stepped into the docks dispute in late afternoon. Maurice MacMillan, the Secretary of Employment, called both sides in for talks. Political sources said after hearing their views he would consider whether roundtable talks, possibly under his chairmanship, would serve any purpose.

Under the Industrial Relations Act, the Secretary of State could described the longshoremen's deciapply to the Industrial Court for sion as "a very serious situation by ated wage claims, Mr. Sapir warned an order for a cooling-off period any standards." Sadat said that his country was construction and building. He said that Egypt was experiencing a "passing crisis" which he compared with that which the U.S. faced after the Pearl Harbour deback in World War Two, He said that Egypt is growing stronger every day, and expressed the hope that he would be speaking to his audiences next year about an ended battle and future construction.

He urged his audience to maintain "national unity" and warned that he would not tolerate division "under any slogan or any pressure." Sadat went on to warn against militant behaviour - presumably of the students, whose anti-government demonstration earlier this year sparked off political unrest, mainly aimed at Sadat's alliance with the Soviets.

PRESS ATTITUDE

The Egyptian state-controlled press earlier yesterday flatly turned down Mrs. Meir's call for a meeting with President Sadat, stating that Egypt had already defined its position of no direct negotiations and no acceptance of the status quo. The organ of Egypt's single political party, the Arab Socialist Union — "Al Gombouriya" newspaper - said Mrs. Meir's proposal was aimed "at deceiving world public opinion because Israel knows in advance that Egypt absolutely rejects direct negotiations."

Meauwhile, the Middle East News Agency yesterday reported Minister Danish radio correspondent that Egypt's goal is not war but peace based on justice. The agency quoted Mr. Zayyat as saving "our goal is not war or destruction, as Zionmocratic presidential candidate at peace."

NEW YORK (INA). - United States intelligence sources say there are "strong indications" that the Soviet Union is removing from Egypt most of its warplanes assigned with Soviet flying crews to the Egyptian air defences, "The New York Times" reported yesterday.

These intelligence sources said it appeared that among the planes being removed were most of the IS Tu-16 twin-jet reconnaissance bombers, whose primary mission was to track the warships of the T.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, as well as some 70 Mig-21 jet fighter-bombers and about 6 advanced Mig-23s, all flown by Soviet pilots.

American intelligence said that Egypt, however, would retain over 200 older Mig-19s, Mig-21s and Kremlin seen avoiding Sukhoi-7 bombers, which had been turned over to Cairo over the last five years. These are piloted and controlled by Egyptian personnel. According to intelligence, the Egyptians will also keep surfacemilitary involvement to-air missiles and other armaments that the Russian gave them

Freed dockers, from left, Victor Turner, Bernard Steer and Anthony Merrick, are cheered by support-ers as they leave Pentoville Prison in London Wednesday after being released by the Industrial Belations Court.

FREEING OF THE 'PENTONVILLE MARTYRS If France is formally invited pose as the defender of the Arab cause in Europe, it will have final-ly achieved the status which General de Gaulle began striving for long before he imposed his embargo on Tarael's Mirages just before the Victory for the unions Six Day War. Receiving President Gamal Nas-ser's deputy, Marshal Amer, here in 1965, de Gaulle said: "On the other

The dockers were freed just in time to head off what was develop-ing into one of the worst industrial disputes Britain has experienced Conly a few hours before the decision since the general strike of 1926 by the National Industrial Relations Court to let the men out was analki nounced the General Council of the Trade Unions Congress, the roof body for the unions, had called a 24-hour national strike for this coming Monday. Many workers had already walked off the jobs as soon as the men were jailed and the situation was growing worse daily as more and more trade unions called their men out in sympathy with the "Pentonville martyra." . It was the fear of unemployment which actually started the whole business. Dockers the world over. including Israel, are seeing the amount of work available to them dwindle away as more and more sea cargoes are brought to the ports in prepacked containers which are transferred from lorries or goods trains straight into the holds of the waiting ships.

In order to ensure their future Frime Minister Edward Heath on ned warning strikes in protest employment, dock workers here de cided to demand that they be given work at the container depois where the cargoes are brought for packag-ing and transfer by rall to the which created the industrial relations Act in is clear that the final curtain ру г ships. Jerusalem Post Correspondent LONDON. - Professor Nathaniel lichfield, the man chosen by Mayor Teddy Kollek to be the chief town planner for Jerusalem, believes that criticism is a normal hazard of an architect or town planner's life." Apart from this remark, he refuses to discuss the criticism levelled at his appointment by City Councillor Meron Benvenisti, who called it an "expensive public relations gimmick."

The 56-year-old professor of the conomics of environmental planning at the School of Environmental Studies at the University of ondon combines his academic work with the running of consultant's office, from which he practises what he preaches.

The British-born and trained planer and economist has been involved in projects all over the United Kingdom and Ireland. In addition he has acted as an international consultant in Asia, Australia, and North and South America.

Israeli wife

His international activities brought him to Israel four years ago when he was invited by the then Minister of Housing, Mordechai Bentov, to advise on planning work at the Ministry. This led to a number of other offers of work in the public sector and, after he married Israell Architect Dalia Kadoury two years ago, he decided to open his own office in Tel Aviv.

Frequent songs

Moreover, Tom Richardson, the guide (or courier as he is known), and Brian O'Brien, the bus driver, provided their own Irish brand of entertainment: both the mild-mannered Tom and the brash Brian would burst into song at frequent intervals (they seemed to have an appropriate one for each occasion or place of special interest) to the delight of the passengers, even though most of their songs were sad, in the Irish tradition.

They also had an enormous fund of jokes, Irish and otherwise; had a remarkable knowledge of their country and its history, and in later private conversations I found them quite well versed in Israel and other Middle East events (both were quick to point out to me that a Dubliner, the late Yitzhak Halevi Herzog, was a Chief Rabbi of Israel.)

I tried to console him by saying occasional violence on the border always caused tourist bookings to drop, as was the case of the Lod massacre, but that shooting was usually hundreds of kilometres from tourist centres. But he gloomily pointed out that whereas the Israelis had occasional shooting, the violence in Northern Ireland was continuous, always got big news-paper headlines, and made the English feel they were unwanted even in the quiet Irish Republic.

I was told much the same in Jerusalem by a travel agent friend. "Too much fighting there," she said, "and even without it I had only handled one case some years ago of an Israel Radio official going to Dublin for professional reasons."

The Board Failte official was vague about Israelis coming to Ireland. "I know a few have come here, but it is difficult to know how many because many tourists come here from England and there is no actual way of making a breakdown in statistics."

Like any tourist official anywhere else he was keen to see Israelis come to Ireland, though he admitted ruefully — when I told him that the Irish, being Catholic, should make pilgrimages to the Holy Land - that the "Irish are poor tourists but good emigrants." (The first of two articles.)

As to relations with the superpowers, Mr. realize how they raised the Arabs' morale for some time, by becoming Eliav predicted that the Arabs would eventually push the Russians out and foresaw a rapprochment between the Arabs and the U.S.

He does believe that while most interests of the U.S. and Israel are parallel the day could come when both countries "will wish to go it alone." He notes that neither the U.S. nor the Soviet Union can regard Israel just as any other country, because of their large Jewish minorities an element missing in China for example. Mr. Eliav said he would go to the Labour Party with his ideas, starting with the local branches. He hopes that some of his ideas, particularly on relations with the Palestinians, will provide the basis for amending the Party's election plat-form in 1973.

Much of the book is devoted to his views of "humanistic socialism." "We have to return to our real values, to a simpler way of life and the example has to come from the leadership," he told me. "Conspicuous consumption has to be cut out and we have to restore our aspirations for egalitarianism." "I want to talk to those who will come to power in the 1990's. I can tell you that I prefer a little Israel with real quality of life to a 'Greater Israel.' We have to look into the quality of our lives."

In his book he looks to an Isri with a population of eight million, for the time being. "The Soviet-led world is inimical to us. One cannot pursue a one-sided policy. But don't ask me what I think Israel's foreign policy should be."

Sharp distinctions

Even in the aftermath of war and defence spending, the ultimate aim of the people should not be forgotten. "Th ere is no need to mince words. This is not the time to gloss over differences. On the contrary, this is the era of sharp distinctions," Mr. Ben-Aharon asserted. The public must be "informed and educated" on the general sim to build "a so-ciety which is more just than the resent one." Mr. Ben-Aharon reacted angrily when reminded that he had agreed with the president of the Manufac-turers Association that the minimum wage should be IL17 per day. "We only signed a protocol. It was not an agreement. The manufacturers wanted a contract, but we refused: it almost blew up the negotiations. All we signed was an outline indicating trends. The actual contracts would still be elaborated by the trade unions concerned."

"Even under the best of contracts, worker in Israel will have to toil fifty hours a week - while in Europe, the organization which elected me vice-president (the international Congress of Free Trade Unions) is now fighting for a 38-hour week with no overtime allowed," Mr. Ben-Aharon said.

He said he knew there was opposition to him even within the Labour Party - "Some Mapai circles, not only Rafi, balked at socialism when the platform of the United Labour Party was discussed: but they were overruled." He is fairly confident about the future, however. "I brought about Labour unity: and believe me, I knew against whom we were joining forces." Mr. Ben-Aharon said Mapam should have been in the united party, too - "I don't understand why they insist on remaining outsiders." The criticism which Mr. Ben-Aharon has aroused in his own party does not shake him. "If people only read what McGovern says they would call me a moderate." He believes he can sway party opinion in the direction he wants. "But if am outvoted, I'll go on trying to be at peace with my conscient "I have no ambitions at present to assume power," he said.

Another problem exposed during

MUNICH (AP). -ORGANIZERS of the biggest and CONTINERS of the biggest and costliest Olympic Games have exactly one month to solve problems uncovered this month during five days of test competitions at the Games complex.

Opening ceremonies are August 26 for the 16-day games in which 10,000 athletes from 120 nations will compete in 21 sports. The olympic ' budget is DM1,972m. (or IL2,570m.) four times that of the 1935 Mexico City games.

Two million spectators are expect-ed to witness the Games live, and hundreds of millions more will watch competitions via the world's largest "The more breakdowns now, the

And the Olympic test competitions in track and field, swimming, rowing, gym-nastics, cycling and fencing did pin-point technical and organizationel problems, most of which appear easily solvable.

But complaints about scoreboard malfunctions and cramped living conditions in the Olympic village appear minor compared with that posed by the architectural focal point of the games — the world's biggest roof draped over the Olympic stadium and two nearby arenas. One newspaper called the $0,000 capacity Olympic stadium "Germany's biggest frying pan." after ath-letes competing in torrid heat complained about erratic air conditions apparently caused by the roof.

Distance star Harald Norpoth said a suffocating lack of air on the track nearly caused him to abandon the 5,000 metres race, which he won in the slow time of 14:11.5 minutes. Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen was the next batter and instead of trying to advance the Spiegler had been signed to play instead of trying to advance the for the English club West Ham runner with a sacrifice, he swung United but because of a two-year away. That strategy worked as he dropped a soft liner to centre just beyond the grasp of shortstop Bob-by Grich. Williams raced to third on the play. Houston's Lee May got the run home with a shot to shortstop which Grich turned into a force-out at base. When Ron Santo second jammed into a double play, it sent the game into extra innings. Rojas, who has hit only 39 home run, as the National League railied runs in 10 Major League seasons, for a 4-3 victory over the Americans stole the dramatic thunder from in baseball's 43rd All-Star game in Atlanta's Hank Aaron with his eighth inning home run. That shot, just over the left field fence beyond Williams' grasp, gave the Amer-icans the lead, wiping out a 2-1 edge provided by a sixth inning home run by Aaron. The Americans had picked up a run in the third inning when Bill Freehan of Detroit walked on four straight pitches, moved up on Jim Palmer's sacrifice and scored on single by Rod Carew. A close and careful examination of the use of the word sadeh in the Bible proves conclusively that it means not any field, but a cultivated field. sadeh means a cultivated field. Two contrasting qualities are given for the twin brothers, Esau and Jacob. Esau was a "hunter and a man of the field." while Jacob was a "simple man, dwelling in tents." Since these qualities are contrasted, the "hunter" is the opposite of the "simple man" and the "man of the field" of "the dweller in tents." The former explains the midrash to the effect that Esau's "hunting" consisted of cunningly "hunting" consisted of cunningly entrapping his father with hypo-crisy, but Ibn Ezra gives it a rational meaning by pointing out that the hunter has to use cunning and strategem. With regard to the latter, however, The Ezra hesitatingly and Samuel b. Meir (the Rashbam) with certainty maintain that it constitutes the age-old conflict between the farmer and the cattle-breeder. A. "man of the field" means a far-mer, and a dweller in tents a herdsman (cf. Gen. 4:20). This unusual interpretation of Jacob as a herdsman explains both his occupation with Laban, and the statement of Joseph's brethren to Pharaoh, "Thy servants are shepherds, both we, and also our fathers" (Gen. 47:3). JERUSALEM COLLEGE APPOINTS CHANCELLOR

Rabbi Hillel E. Silverman of Temple Sinal, Beverly Hills, California, has been appointed Chancellor of the American College in Jerusalem. Dean Leonard J. Goldstein announces from the American office of the College at 888 Seventh Avenue in New York City that Dr. Silverman while continuing his full-time duties at the Temple will serve as chief spokesman for the College in the United States The American College in Jerusalem is the only four-year liberal arts, nonsectarian institution of higher learning in Israel, in which English is the language of instruction. (Advt.)

Jerusalem Post Reporter TEL AVIV. - Planist-conductor Daniel Barenboim, the musical director of the Israel Festival, hopes that in next year's festival many Israeli musicians living in Israel or abroad will be able to perform. "Musicians have become as much an Israeli ex-port as citrus fruit and diamonds," Mr. Barenboim remarked, speaking to the press here on Wednesday. Though the current festival is in mid-course, Mr. Barenboim outlined the programme of the next year's events because he is due to leave in few days for Europe and the U.S. Already booked for the 1973 season is Pinhas Zuckerman, who will conduct the Chamber Orchestra with Yitzhak Pearlman as soloist. Alexander Tal's electronic music opera "Massada" will be performed under the direction of Gary Bertini. There will be an evening devoted to the theme "Haleluya." Stern, Rose, Istomin and Alexander Schneider, who took part in the first festival, will also appear. Vladimir will play Mozart with Ashkenazi Barenboim conducting. And the Schubert quintets, which were on the programme two years ago but did not materialize, will certainly be included in the festival. Jewish folklore and synagogal music will also be represented in the festival programme. "We shall also have an operatic performance of the kind of Samson and Delilah with Zubin Mehta directing - but it is too early to announce what it will be," Mr. Barenboim sald.

The musical programmes will be supplemented by a series of Chamber Orchestra performances in the Ein Hod amphitheatre, where the stress will be on Israeli composers. Non-musical events in the forthcoming festival include the London Royal Ballet, a foreign theatre company, and Matityahu Shoham's mas-terful "Tyre and Jerusalem" which Habimah will finally have the means to stage.

NINE MORE TOWERS FOR

on their merits

By DAVID LANDAU, Jerusalem Post Diplomatic Correspondent Israel has approved only three out of 10 requests by Holland for special flights to Lod during the peak tourist season this summer. The Israel Government sent a letter to the Dutch Government this week explaining that Israel could only agree in advance to three of the special flight requests: the rest would be decided on their merits.

comes after both governments decided to step in and attempt to settle a steadily worsening dispute between the two national carriers, El Al and KLM, over landing rights and numbers of flights.

The dispute came to a head last week with Dutch Foreign Minister. Norbert Schmeltzer complaining publicly of Israel's attitude on flights from Holland, and El Al Manager Mordechal Ben-Ari reacted by accusing the Dutch airline of filling its special flights to Lod with non-Dutch nationals, mainly Americans.

During the 1960s, KLM was granted a third weekly flight to Lod — over the objections of El At which maintained that two were enough for the genuine Dutch traffic. The Dutch carrier immediately began pressing for four, and in May this year, Mr. Schmeltzer visited Israel the Israel Government to grant a of Israel's aviation policy. Holland tourth flight. The Israel Government message had been running to Lod for several years (the company had had 60 of these in 1971 alone) the fourth regular weekly flight was granted on the understanding that the extra flights into Lod would no longer be approved (Each extra flight must be approved individually by the Israel civil aviation authorities.) Nevertheless, one day earlier this month, KLM brought to Amsterdam airport from across the Atlantic several hundred passengers en route to Israel, on the assumption that they could be flown into Lod on special KLM flights. The Israel authorities refused to approve any spe-cial flights. The story broke in the

Dutch press, which accompanied it with a good deal of comment critical of Israel's action. MISUNDERSTANDING SEEN Jerosalem officials believe that the

The site had been acquired by the Contractor's Association in the 1960s for the construction of a headquarters building to be dubbed "The Builder's Palace." It was sold by the association to the Jerusalem contractor, Ezra Levy.

The third project, by the Hachsharat Hayishuv Company, is to consist of three buildings eight to 10 storeys high. It requires only some adjustment to permit more parking space at the adjacent telephone exchange on Nar-kiss Street before receiving approval by the Local Planning Commission. It will then have to go to the District Planning Commission and be deposited for public comment.

Members of the Municipal Urban Planning Unit, however, have expressed strong disapproval of the towers which they say break the scale and form a 500-metre long barrier between the neighbourhoods to the east and the Knesset-Israel Museum complex. Architect Art Kutcher, who has just resigned from the Unit, commented in an interview this week that such luxury towers had adverse social connotations. "They show that there are some people who are more important than others and that their houses can rob the view from other people and break the rhythm of the skyline."

TWO ROAD VICTIMS DIE

(Itim)

A road accident on Wednesday afternoon claimed the life of a Gaza boy, while the victim of an earlier accident died of his injuries yesterday.

The boy, nine-year-old Abed Rabi Badur of Gaza's Sajich section, was hit by a truck at 4 p.m. while trying to cross the main highway at the northern entrance to Gaza. The driver of the truck, Hassan Halaf of Gaza, was held for questioning.

The second accident victim was Shiomo Assian, 35, who died of the head injuries he sustained last weekend when a bus hit the tractor he was driving in the Sakhne park. Assian was treated first at Afula hospital and then moved to Beilinson Hospital in Petah Tikva, where he died before dawn yesterday.
